G. O. Opens Term With Varied Events

Student Leaders Address New Members of Faculty

Student leaders of Lane addressed the new members of the faculty at the Teachers' Tea held on October 6, in the teachers' cafeteria.

The third annual tea was sponsored by the Leadership Class under the direction of Mr. Max Salz, Lane's G.O. adviser. Carol Brustein and Barbara Klausner were the student committee in charge of its presentations. The purpose of the tea was to familiarize the new teachers with Lane activities and introduce them to school leaders.

Highest Averages Earn Free Passes

Ten of last semester's sixth termers who achieved the highest averages will have the opportunity of attending every performance to be given this season at the Academy of Music, located on 30 Lafayette Avenue, free of charge.

Dr. Eisner spoke and once again welcomed the teachers. He then introduced them to the student leaders.

Th first speaker, Clarence Hinnant, G.O. Vice-President, spoke to the faculty members about the functions of the G.O. and the duties of its members. He also spoke about the functions of the Leadership Class, Active Members Corps, and the Student Council.

Fred Corb, chairman of the United Laneites Committee, spoke about its efforts to promote brotherhood.

Carolyn Murray then went on to speak about the detailed work of the Leadership class and its connection with the Student Council.

District Attorney Harriet Blumberg described the importance and functions of the Student Court.

Joe Catalanello, Editor-in-Chief of the Lane Reporter, explained the operation of the newspaper and duties of its staff.

Irmgard Kohl talked about the qualifications needed to join the Athletic Council and its participation in school sports activities.

2 Leaders Attend Andover Session

Judy Speth, G.O. President, and Marilyn Mugno, City Council delegate, represented Lane at the annual G.O. workshop held October 3, 4, and 5 at Andover, N. J.

The Richard Welling Fund and the G.O. sponsored their trip. They boarded along with other students at the Hudson Guild Farm in Andover. The farm, situated about 50 miles from the George Washington Bridge, is used every year for this purpose.

Representatives were sent to attend the convention from the various New York City high schools. At Andover they got together and exchanged their views and ideas. The main discussion question of the week-end was "Is responsibility a way to obtain brotherhood?" The students were divided into groups in which each took a different phase of the main topic.

The City High School Press Council also met there. Their chief job was to get a start on their new project, Juvenile Decency. The aim of the project is to get more publicity for the decent teenagers and less for the delinquent ones. They hope to obtain this through radio, TV, newspapers, and magazines.

Aside from discussing the various projects, students had a chance to make new friends. There was space for various recreational activities on the 10-acre farm. On Friday night they attended a square dance and on Saturday night a bonfire drew crowds. On Sunday, students who wished to do so attended their own religious services.

The representatives left Friday afternoon from William Cullen Bryant High School and returned there Sunday night.

G.O. Awards Presented At Orientation Assembly

For the first time in the 20 year history of Lane, G.O. service awards were presented during the Orientation Assembly held on October 3. Clarence Hinnant, G.O. Vice President, conferred these awards at the end of the introductory program.

This assembly was attended by freshman and new sophomores, who thus learned of some of the school activities.

Dr. Harry Eisner opened the program with a few words of welcome to the new students. Following his address, Miss Christine Lietz, dean of girls, Mr. Robert Berman, dean of boys, Mr. Jacob Peshkin, administrative assistant, Mr. Gustave Hamburger, acting chairman of grade advisers, and Mr. Harry Kuris, chairman of the program committee, told the new students of their positions in the school.

Judy Speth, president of the G.O., followed with a welcome speech, and remained to act as mistress of ceremonies for the rest of the program.

First in the parade of Laneites presented to the lower classmen were Susan Hanes and Frederick Corb, girl and boy leaders of Arista. Student Court Judge Barbara Hassell, and Student Court District Attorney Harriet Blumberg were introduced next to the students.

Clarence Hinnant, representing the United Laneites Committee, explained that the ideals of the group are to promote brotherhood and tolerance among students of all races and religions at Lane.

The editor-in-chief of the Lane Reporter, Joseph Catalanello, was received by the audience.

Irmgard Kohl, president of the Girls Athletic Council, was on hand to say a few words on behalf of girls' athletics activities. Bob Wallace talked about boys' athletic activities.

Representatives of the various clubs were introduced to the students.

The mixed chorus, under the direction of Mr. Seth Vandeverg, serenaded the lower classmen with "The Arkansas Traveler."

Fred Corb, presented last term's top ten in scholastic achievement to the new students.

Judy, closing the program with some words of advice, told them to "Remember! The activities mentioned are for your benefit and if you don't take advantage of them they don't mean a thing."

Parents' Association Members Will Tour Building This Evening At 8:00

Mr. Francis Nolan, custodian-engineer, will conduct the Parents' Association members on a tour of the building tonight at 8:00.

This will be the second meeting of the P. A. The first one was opened by Mrs. Martha Mugno, president of the Parents' Association. She welcomed the members to their first meeting on September 17, 1958, stressing the need for their cooperation and telling of two scholarships set up by the organization.

Scholarships of fifty dollars each were set up at the last meeting to be given to a boy and girl who excel in scholastic work and service to the school and have received no other scholarships.

Dr. Harry Eisner, principal, addressed the group, pointing out the friendliness existing between the association and the parents. He invited them to come and participate in school extra-curricular activities and talk to the heads of the thirteen departments.

Mr. Robert Berman, dean of boys, stressed the importance of students starting right in at the beginning to exert their best efforts to achieve success.

Miss M. Christine Lietz, dean of girls, emphasized regular attendance and punctuality. She pointed out that repeated lateness will mean failure.

BOOK SHOP SELLS G.O. MERCHANDISE

G.O. banners, emblems, buttons, and bookcovers now line the shelves of Mr. Samuel Martin's book store, along with the usual selection of books including novels, short stories, dictionaries, poetry, and regents review books.

These G.O. items are now sold in the book store and no longer in the G.O. office. The prices however, remain unchanged. Shop notebooks and pencils have also been added for the convenience of the students.

Along with the new addition, there still remains the large array of books ranging from "The World's Greatest Recipes" to "The Scourge of the Swastika." Included among these are numerous books to improve one's vocabulary, such as French, Spanish, German, and English dictionaries. Novels, short stories, and books of verse also appear on the shelves. Of particular interest to all students are the review books which cover a wide range of subjects. They are a necessity when reviewing for a regents examination and many teachers require them for classwork. All books are sold at a reasonable discount.

The book store is open before and after school and during the first and seventh periods. Browsers are welcome when the small room is not crowded.

Some time before Christmas there will be a book fair like the one that took place last year, when six hundred dollars worth of books was sold, without publicity. This provides a opportunity to purchase inexpensive but valuable presents.

Dr. Eisner's Message

Our new Superintendent of Schools, Dr. John J. Theobald, in a recent radio address to New York City school teachers, emphasized the importance of developing a sense of responsibility in all pupils. It is interesting to note that the word responsibility is derived from the same stem as the word respond. A person who possesses a sense of responsibility realizes constantly that he must respond or answer for his words and actions. Such a person is keenly aware of the feelings and expectations of others and acts accordingly. He is guided by a sense of justice and fair play. He endeavors to do his best on every job he undertakes, and he exerts every effort to carry through his assignment to a successful conclusion. He does all this without the need of reminders, prodding or nagging from his teachers, parents or other persons concerned.

You have probably come across people in all walks of life who are often late for their appointments, or who fail to keep promises they have made, or who perform their work in a deliberately sloppy or inefficient manner. Such people are inclined to shrug off their deficiencies or to assume a resentful or defiant attitude when they are reproached for their shortcomings. Lacking a sense of responsibility, they do not feel called upon to respond by appropriate action and by determination to do better the next time.

Your responsibility as a student calls for regular attendance, concentration and application in class, and your best effort in study and preparation for the next day. Your responsibility as a good school citizen demands a pattern of behavior that respects the dignity and the rights of your fellow students. Life at Lane offers countless opportunities for developing this highly valued trait. In this process, your teachers will guide you and help you as much as they can. The rest is up to you.

Welcome to Our Neighbors

When new neighbors move into an area, necks stretch, sleepy eyes open, and tongues dance as curiosity runs high. Everyone wonders what the "new people" will be like, forgetting that these people also wonder what their new neighbors will be like and how they will accept them. The self-appointed mission of each individual on both sides is to find out.

Our new neighbors, who have moved into the Dexter Park Gardens project, need go no further. The student body of our school welcomes them and is glad they have come. They have removed the desolate environment with which our school has long been surrounded. Now there's life near us! In addition the coming of the project gives us an opportunity to raise the reputation of Lane to greater heights by showing the residents that we respect their rights and their property as we do our own.

Because we are a school, we live in what may be called a glass house. Everything that occurs here can be seen or can be made known. We will always keep our best side forward, and push into oblivion any other side.

We are all decent young boys and girls, and we will be the kind of neighbors that our new neighbors hoped to find.

The Limelight

By FRAN COLLATO

Recently returned from the Austrian Alps on a Pan-American airliner is Miss Edith Leunig, of the English department.

Miss Leunig, who took a three-week trip to the quaint and scenic village of Bad Hofgastein, Austria, spent ten days in Salzburg, the home of the composer Mozart. It was a wonderful rest for Miss Leunig and she hopes to be able to make the trip again.

Miss Leunig, who is a graduate of Adelphi College, did post graduate work at Columbia while working on Wall Street in the foreign department of a bank. It was during her brief career on Wall Street that Miss Leunig decided teaching would be the path she'd follow. And, in her opinion it was a wise decision.

Miss Leunig, who enjoys swimming, loves the classroom and is at present taking a special course on great books given by Mr. Harry Kuris.

Calm, cool, and collected is Lane's G.O. president, Judith Speth. A member of Arista, the leadership class, the mixed chorus, the student council, and the girls' bowling club, Judith plans to attend Cornell University for a five year course in science, and then go to to a career as a physical therapist.

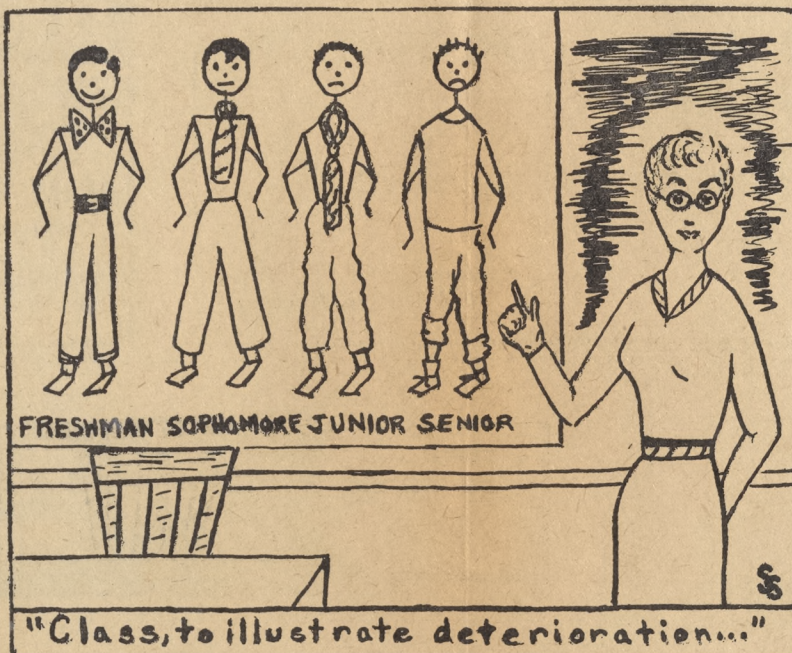

Judith, who finds advanced algebra very challenging, plays the piano, sews, sings in her church choir, and acts as vice-president of her church fellowship. You've certainly chosen a winner, Laneites!

Busily toiling within the walls of Lane, Robert Wallace can always be found either participating in the leadership class, the student council as senior representative, crooning in the mixed chorus, or perhaps swinging his racket on the tennis team.

Bob, who wishes to attend Valparaiso University in Indiana, plans to become a hygiene and health education teacher, and enjoys swimming, plucking his guitar, and studying fire arms.

Outside Lane's portals Bob plays on his church basketball team, sings in the choir, and teaches Sunday school.

BE A MOOKIST!

By HARRIET BLUMBERG

Bigotry or Mookism? Discrimination versus Brotherhood! The choice is yours, as it was for the 150 student leaders who attended the 13th Annual High School Camp Conference at Camp Lake Bryn Mawr, sponsored by the Greater New York Area Council of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. The chief aim of the Conference was to teach its members how to practice good human relations.

Will you be the person who asks his neighbor's religion or looks at his skin before asking him to join your team or to lend his homework? Or will you be the one who finds out first if he's a good player or if he did the history assignment? To discourage the former and teach the latter is one of the main purposes of the N.C.C.J., though in a much larger and broader sense. This agency of human relations hopes to bring this practice of brotherhood not only to schools, but to communities throughout the nation.

Mookism is the belief in and furtherance of the brotherhood of all youth defying discrimination. A mookist is a person who wishes to further the cause of tolerance.

Mookism, the word which captured the attention of most N.C.C.J. campers at Bryn Mawr, was derived during a session of the "Self Segregation in School" group. Mookism is indeed a different and catchy word, and it was felt that this quality of difference and unusualness would be of value in getting people to learn about the purpose of this N.C.C.J. Conference.

Originally mookism referred to a feeling of pride towards one's own such as those associated with cliques and sororities. But as the popularity of the word, not its meaning, grew, several campers felt that it could be better used to symbolize the feeling of altruism which the N.C.C.J. campers hoped to take home and spread throughout their neighborhood.

The logic behind "mookism" is to make "deed not creed," the governing thought in our relationship with others.

Essentially the intention of those who presented the concept of "mookism" to the camp was to incorporate it into the N.C.C.J. framework. Mookism possesses the potential to develop into a mass movement. It also presents a means of crystallization of the principles of human relations which was experienced during the five day stay at Bryn Mawr.

For those high school students interested in combating discrimination and furthering mookism, the movement began officially on October 12 and is open to all.

Music Hath Its Charms

By ESTHER BROMFELD

Music is the world's greatest magician. It can make the boaster humble and the dullard spirited; it can don many different capes of happiness and gaiety, of magnificence and beauty. Music adds a magic ingredient to life, and thus we see the importance of our school orchestra to our school life.

True, perhaps our orchestra cannot run the gamut all the way, but it certainly has its specialties. Hasn't it been one of the main sources of school spirit for eons and eons? "O Franklin Lane will always be to us . . ." we literally shout at each assembly.

The orchestra members know of something else that most of us are not aware of. One member said, "When I am playing with the orchestra I feel proud, because I know I am a part of a wonderful group. I am sure that all the other members feel the same way."

Yes, they probably do. What a very great thrill it must be to learn an instrument and, if you are good enough, be able to play with a real orchestra. This is accomplishment. The social and musical appeal is so great that some students who come here with some previous knowledge of an instrument play from the time they enter Lane until they play at their own graduation. That must be a thrilling memory to have.

The new recruit to our orchestra will find, from the moment he enters, an atmosphere of friendliness and excitement. Everyone has something to do, and everyone enjoys what he is doing. In addition, he will have so much to look forward to, so many new things to experience. Best of all, perhaps, is that he will come to know the magic of music.

GOAL — "A HAPPY SCHOOL"

By SUSAN HANESS

Suddenly the cafeteria was in an uproar. Two boys, poised for a fight, hurled barbed insults at one another from across a lunch table. A teacher hurried over to break up the commotion and the boys were separated.

In any school but Lane the episode would have ended in the dean's or principal's office. Lane, however, has a unique organization which deals with cases such as this one. Its name is the United Laneites Committee.

Composed of about twenty-five Negro and white boys and girls, the U. L. C.'s goal is to make Lane "a happy school." By promoting good relations among all members of the school, regardless of race or religion, the committee feels that this can be accomplished.

One of the ways in which the U. L. C. promotes brotherhood is by its unique practice of interviewing students who have gotten into trouble with their classmates. During any 8th period, room 158 may be abuzz with the probing questions and often unexpected answers of the committee members and culprits. The only teacher present is Mr. Michael Aronson, assistant dean of boys and faculty adviser to the group, and he stays completely in the background during the proceedings.

"We'd like the school to know that the U. L. C. is a student organization," a former committee member remarked. "We have found that a student who does not conform to the school code is more apt to feel bad when his fellow students condemn him than when he is scolded by a teacher. That is where the U. L. C. comes into play."

Perhaps the slogan of the United Laneites Committee best sums up the hopes and ideals of all its members, as well as of every other true Laneite. Their motto is "Fight Discrimination, Not Students."

All Wet All Summer Long

While many of Lane's students played away the summer, frolicking at the nation's seashores, some were there in professional capacity serving as lifeguards and and swimming instructors.

Barry Gitlin and John Caleca, two of Lane's students, served as lifeguards at Rockaway Beach in Queens over the summer. This was perhaps one of the most interesting and exciting jobs open to teenagers. Under the authorization of the Department of Parks, John and Barry, who passed aptitude tests in swimming, were given opportunities to use their time and talents in aiding others.

Barry had fifteen cases over the summer but the one he remembers most vividly was his first one. An elderly woman informed him that there was a girl drowning out beyond the waves. While in the midst of rescuing her, Barry saw another girl, also drowning. His first case was then in reality two cases in that he had to rescue two persons instead of one.

John Caleca's experiences varied from children to heart attacks. John recalled one incident in particular, when he administered artificial respiration spasmodically for twenty minutes to a young woman. Fortunately, thanks to John's lifesaving action, the victim came to.

Participating in sixty-three cases kept John busy throughout the entire summer. John stated that he was proud and thought it an honor to serve the public.

Cindermen Recruits Needed

"Expansion can mean one of the most successful seasons that Lane cindermen have enjoyed in many years," stated Mr. Jerry Sloane, coach of the cross country team. "If more students were to come out for the team," continued Mr. Sloane, "Lane could score more points by participating in all field events, such as the shot put, hammer throw, discus and javelin, as well as in the sprints and runs."

Although a newcomer to Lane, Mr. Sloane is no novice at coaching boys. He leaves a fine record at Decatur Junior High, where he was the basketball mentor for seven years. However, here at Lane he will have an opportunity to indulge in his first love: track and field.

Though several of last year's stars have left, Coach Sloane feels he has the nucleus for an outstanding squad. Some of last seasons standouts such as Dale Dixon, Sterling Lewis, and Henry Booth, combined with a promising array of newcomers, will make this year's team a potential powerhouse in P.S.A.L. competition. However, once again the prosperity of this year's team depends upon how well we can enlarge it. The coach suggested that boys who are athletically inclined, but are not quite fast enough for track, will probably do very well in the field events. Those students who feel they have something to contribute to the squad, will be made welcome by Coach Sloane any day after school in room 270 or at practice at Victory Field.

The powerful cross country team has already launched the fall season taking fourth place, scoring 141 points in the New York University Interscholastic Run held at Van Cortlandt Park on October 4.

The Knights, sparked by Henry Booth, Dale Dixon, Willie Brown, Arthur Parinello, and Leslie Shenkin made a good showing out of a field of 175 students from 25 high school throughout the Metropolitan Area.

Their next meet will be the St. John's University meet, to be held at Van Cortlandt Park, October 18 at 10 A.M. The seven boys who will represent Lane in the meet are Dale Dixon, Arthur Parinello, Gil Wheeler, George Phillips, Les Shenkin, Lew Gardner and Henry Booth.

All candidates for the cross country team are also urged to contact coach Sloane in room 270.

SPORTS FIELD RENOVATED

This term there is a new sound echoing through Lane's halls. It is the rumble of Diesel engines. Laneites returning from their summer vacations found their athletic field being renovated.

The renovation took twenty years to attain and will cost approximately fifty thousand dollars.

When completed the new field will consist of a major baseball diamond to be used by our school team. There will also be two smaller softball fields that will be used by the boys' health education classes.

In order to protect the top soil from being washed away there will be a drainage system. The field will also be graded and sodded.

Floodlights will be placed atop the handball court to illuminate the main walk. Thereafter students attending social activities during the evening will be able to use the main entrance.

The entire renovation will be completed during the spring term.

Lane is one of the few high schools in New York City with an athletic field adjacent to its building.

Girls Get Going

Here at Lane, the girls' sports program is getting off with a bang this term with the many activities offered. The Swimming Club, for those girls who would like to improve their skill and also enjoy water activities, will be held on Thursdays with Mrs. Bernice Ballen as faculty adviser. Monday's schedule will be highlighted by the Cheering Club, and a new bowling club for girls. The Bowling Club will meet at the alleys in the basement of the Highland Park Y.M.C.A. Dues will be fifty cents a week. They will pay for the use of the alleys. Miss Doris Kramer will be faculty adviser. Also on Mondays will be the Athletic Council meetings, supervised by Miss Sandra Cohen.

On Wednesdays, the spotlight will be on the Dance Club in Gym B, Basketball in Gym A and Booster meetings for gals who would like to give our teams a "boost."

With the many sports activities offered, every girl should be able to find at least one to fit her interests.

Bowling Coach Praises Squad

"Lane as usual will have a small but skillful fighting squad," stated Mr. Lawrence Rubinow, coach of the bowling team.

Mr. Rubinow has been coaching the bowling team since 1942. During this period of 16 years he has had great success with his teams, winning a total of three P.S.A.L. division championships and four New York City Championships. Despite the handicap of having the smallest squad in the South Queens P.S.A.L. bowling league, Coach Rubinow's teams have always finished among the top.

Last season the Keglers finished in a tie for first place with Jamaica High School. In the playoff, Lane was defeated by the slim margin of seven pins. Mr. Rubinow expects Jamaica to be our toughest opponent but believes his boys can beat them.

This year the team will consist of thirteen regulars as compared with last year's six. These thirteen are Kenneth Lefferts, Joseph Incendio, Frank Galuppo, Joseph Capasso, Anthony Marcello, Robert Mayerhofer, Charles Jochim, Fredrick Lorenzo, Lewis Daniels, Thomas Bartolotto, James Barber, Thomas Luds, and Allen Samuelowitz.

On Wednesday, October 8 the Keglers started off the South Queens P.S.A.L. bowling season by rolling over Van Buren by the score of 3 to 0.

Lane's highest bowler was Lewis Daniels with a total pin score of 357 for two games.

Lane's next match will be against Jamaica High School at the Highland Park Y.M.C.A. today at the close of school.

The Highland Park Y.M.C.A. has been the home of the bowling team since 1942. This year the Y has installed automatic pin setters and new alleys.

Mr. Rubinow would like to see more of the student body at meets when they are held there, to encourage the boys.

Besides being coach of the bowling team, Mr. Rubinow represents the bowling coaches of all the P.S.A.L. leagues on the executive committee of the New York City Public School Coaches Association. In the city of New York there are more than 60 teams represented in this league.

SPORTS

By BARRY GITLIN

With the coming of the fall term, Lane has become sports-minded. All the Varsity teams are enlisting the aid of their star performers.

Reorganization is complete and practice has begun. The prospects for a successful season for all the teams are good. . . .

"With this year's versatile team we expect to do well in P.S.A.L. competition," stated Mr. Carl A. Schoening, swimming team coach.

Mr. Schoening announced his new lineup of mermen. It will feature John Caleca, Edward Smith, and Robert Becht swimming freestyle. They will be aided by Chris Vatucci and John Graziano. Coach Schoening expects Lenny Firstler and Eddy Kropp, two of the Knights' top aqua-speedsters, to see plenty of action this season.

Veterans Ernest Getzone and Barry Gitlin are also slated for the new lineup.

The water-boys will also be aided by Stuart Rosenson, Ralph Behar, and diver Martin Motherway.

Although Mr. Irwin Belopolsky is the new basketball coach, he is not a newcomer to Lane. Last year he exhibited his talent coaching our track team through a championship season.

Coach Belopolsky voiced his confidence in this year's team. "Though our team is comprised mostly of new men, I believe we will have a smoothly functioning unit capable of top performance."

The hoopsters' first game is with Samuel J. Tilden High School on November 14 at the competitors court. It is a non league contest.
